Dear Dr. Julia Eka Rini,

Greetings from Singapore. I'm Brad Blackstone, chief editor for www.eltworldonline.com (ELTWO), an e-journal focusing on English language teaching affiliated with the Centre for English Language Communication at the National University of Singapore.

ELTWO is going to be publishing a special issue on facilitating student bonding early next year (2014). We are looking for contributions from about 6 or 8 experienced teachers.

The article should be about 500-1000 words. The focus is on how individual teachers get their students to bond on the first day of class and subsequently throughout a term. The idea is to elaborate on bonding activities, the specific benefits of these activities and what the teacher hopes to achieve through these activities, etc. The articles can be semi-formal, in a narrative form.

Flora Debora is one of our reviewers. She has recommended you to join us in putting together this special issue.

Would you be interested in contributing? Please let me know.

Best wishes,

Brad Blackstone
Senior Lecturer, CELC/NUS
Chief Editor/ELTWO
