The paper presents an experimental study on intake airflow characteristics. The results are interesting and useful for engine design. Generally, the paper was well-written, I would like to recommend it to be accepted for publication after minor revision.

CA should be oCA, what is definition for 0 oCA, TDC or BDC?

The indicators for the flow velocity and turbulent intensity should be uniform, for example. In figure3 and 4, the indicators should be from 0 to 20, rather than 0 -10 and 0-20.

The velocity and turbulent intensity are averaged in Z direction? If no, what is the z plane in measuring?

The physical reasons for the variations in the measured results should be given, to improve the fundamentals of research.
