Abstract: Pandemic Covid-19 has resulted in disruption in various industry and business sectors. People spend more time at home than they do outside. People who like movies during this time can enjoy the cinema. However, during the covid-19 pandemic, it must be done online to follow strictly regulated restrictions on community activities to avoid the uncontrolled spread of the virus. As a result, streaming platforms with the advancement of internet technology are increasingly playing a role in providing online services for movie fans. This study investigated the effects of perceived ease of use, usefulness, enjoyment, and intention to use online platforms on behavioral intention in online movies during the Covid 19 pandemic. The questionnaires were distributed by sending google form links to respondents who have a streaming platform subscription in Indonesia. As many as 772 questionnaires were filled out completely and could be processed. Data analysis was done by using partial least square with smartPLS software. The results have shown that eight proposed hypotheses have been supported in this study. Perceived ease of use positively affects the perceived usefulness, perceived enjoyment, and intention to watch movies online. Furthermore, perceived usefulness affects perceived enjoyment and intention to watch movies online. Perceived enjoyment influences intention to use and behavioral intention. Finally, intention to use online platforms influences behavioral intention. This research contributes in theory to the technology acceptance model and provides film industry practitioners with insight into enhancing customer behavioral intention in the pandemic era

Dear Authors

Some of the input provided by our reviewers is related to the articles we have received. The results of the review that need to be improved are:

Reviewer # 1

- a. Abstracts must have research objectives, data collection, data analysis, conclusions, and theoretical and practical contributions. Please make improvements.
- b. To clearly detect research gaps, the phenomena of improvement needs to be described and can be highlighted.
- c. Please include the connections between topics that are missing from the article.
- d. The research must include theoretical and practical contributions, particularly near the conclusion of the debate.

Reviewer # 2

- a. Although the abstract is excellent and complete, researchers should add contributions for subsequent researchers.
- b. The literature review is excellent, but in order for the hypotheses to be supported by the literature, it is important to emphasize the connections between concepts.
- c. The discussion needs to be discussed one by one according to the number of hypotheses so that it can be understood in line between the models, the output data analysis, and the discussion
- d. References adapted to the journal format.

Please make improvements according to the requests of each of our reviewers, and please make repairs carefully according to the recommendations of each reviewer.

Sincerely
Sadjadi
